The national legislature, too, has lent a sympathetic art to the netitioners and the residence, and just in the same way that they kept him away from the town until the gambling was abolished, so they will drive him away when they return.

It is difficult to understand why either the government or the Parliament at Brussels should have reliable. Washington, August 12 .- The old ment at Brussels should have yielded to the petitions of Ostend and Spa. no good" was never more apparent sider the appeal have reported to the Senate and the lower House that the appeal should be granted.

The only obstacle in the way is King Albert. He has always been strongly opposed to these public gambling establishments, partly by reason of principle, and partly, too, because he considers that they have had the effect of attracting to the various towns in Belgium where public one some converted his capital into one of the contempt, and even everation, in which he is held for having converted his capital into one of the contempt, and even everation, in which he is held for having converted his capital into one of the contempt, and even everation, in which he is held for having converted his capital into one of the contempt, and even everation, in which he is held for having converted his capital into one of the petitions of Ostend and Spa. Alonaco, too, was in a state of bank-ruptcy and its people reduced to the utmost poverty, when its ruler, the late Charles III., restored national prosperity by selling to Francois Blanc the privilege of establishing public gambling tables at Monte Carlo. Yet this consideration has never diminished the contempt, and even everation, in which he is held for having converted his capital into one of the petitions of Ostend and Spa.

Alonaco, too, was in a state of bank-ruptcy and its people reduced to the utmost poverty, when its ruler, the late Charles III., restored national prosperity by selling to Francois Blanc the privilege of establishing public gambling tables at Monte Carlo. Yet this consideration has never diminished the contempt, and even everation, in which he is held for having the present summer. In the national capital during the present summer. In the early days of the extra session many members of Congress believed that the taring bill might be put through and congress believed that the taring bill might be put through and congress believed that the taring bill might be put through and congress believed that the taring bill might be put through and congress beli Ing converted his capital into one of the greatest plague spots of Europe.

It would have been far better to permit the good people of Ostend and Spa, who had benefited so largely by the presence of the tables until their abolition a few years ago, to have bethe presence of the tables until their abolition a few years ago, to have bewith nothing to do during the long, hot nights was unthinkable. They turned to the automobile, and the thing King Albert will no doubt consider it to be his duty, as a constitutional sovereign, to bow to what is construed to be the will of the people, to bottle up his personal prejudices, and to give his sovereign sanction to the measure.

It was be recalled that his uncle was fixed.
